CALVIN COLLEGE -
BUILDING ON HERITAGE

1957 PRISM

1957 marked a century of history for the Christian Reformed Church. For Calvin College, only nineteen years younger than her parent, this year was a fusion of ivy-covered tradition and blueprint innovation. While reminiscing was accompanied by speculation in Sarnia, Sioux Center, and Sunnyside, at the little school in western Michigan, seventeen hundred students, seemingly oblivious to the rumblings, took the legacy of campus tradition and added to it the stamp of their own exciting individuality and called it college life. This is the story of the PRISM.

IN ONE HUNDRED YEARS...

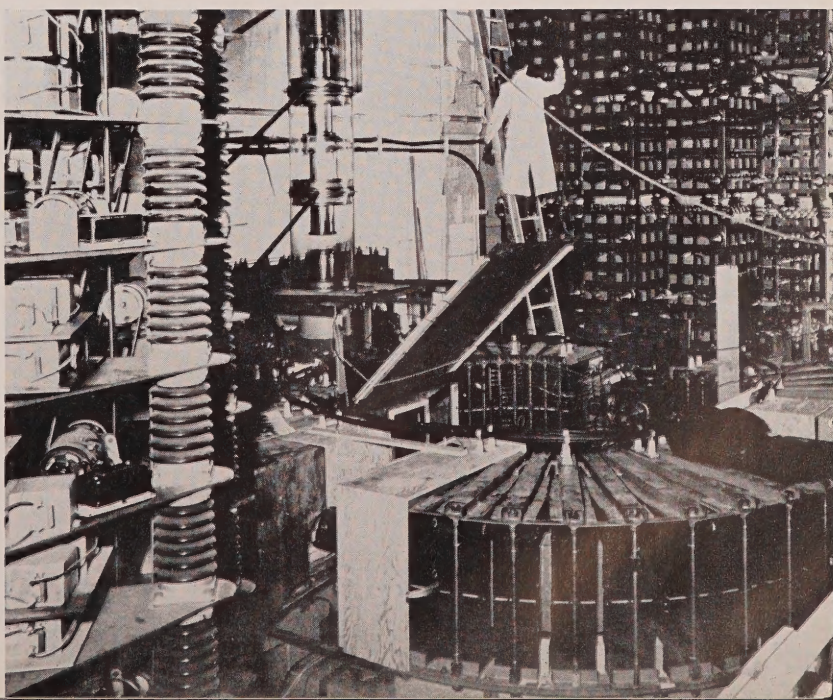

One hundred years is not a long time. The breaking off of one church from another is not an impressive beginning. But, against just this background, the Christian Reformed Church celebrated its centennial in 1957. Boasts of bigness and legends of pioneer heroes did not dominate the thirteen week observance. The prevailing spirit was first of all one of thanksgiving, for the church did have a rich gift of heritage. The organization of an immigrant band in 1857, or an "Afscheiding" twenty-three years earlier was not the real birth date. Rather, the Church was heir to a legacy which God had preserved through all of humankind, the history of the great Church of all ages which was founded in Eden and whose King was Christ. With the keynote, "God's Favor—Our Challenge," pageants and rallies, broadcasts and gifts, sermons and prayers were offered to the Church's Preserver in the year of our Lord 1957.

WINDMILLS TO CYCLOTRONS

The national character and spirit of the denomination had not disappeared with the century. But Americanization was finally making decisive changes. This offered threats as well as opportunities. The pressures of conformity to a deified materialism posed a formidable problem. Yet, there were signs of progress—a rising awareness that the gospel message was not the prized possession of the Dutch alone. Christian Reformed churches now dotted the globe, and more and more, eyes were turned to Calvin College to supply the leaders.

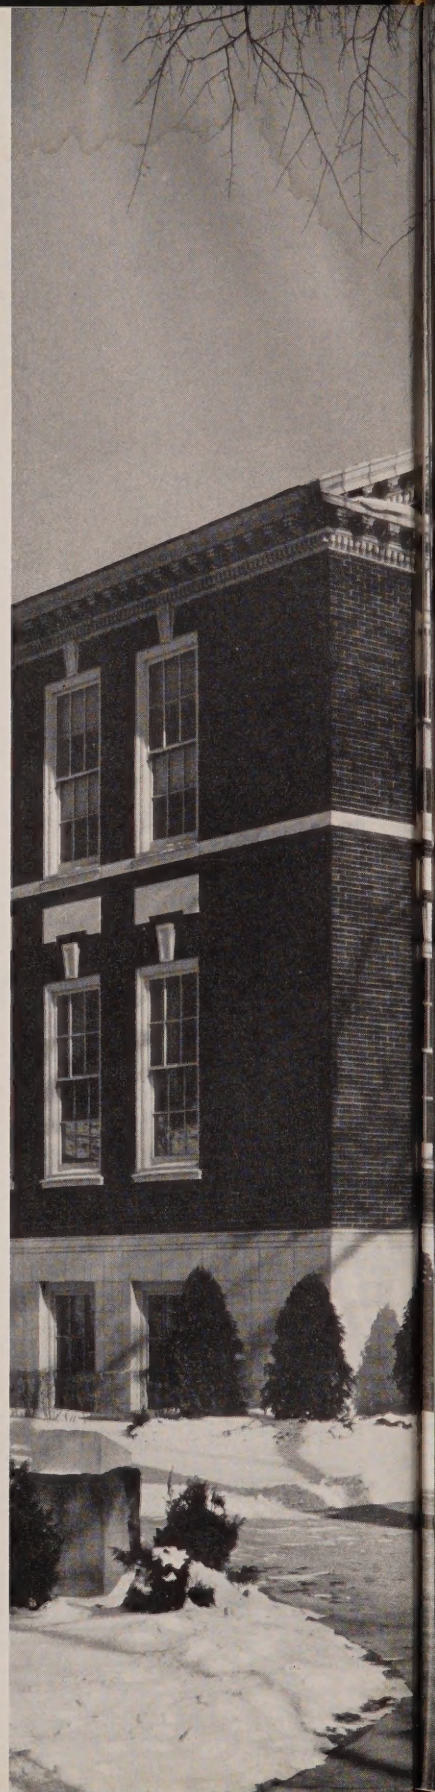

Madison Avenue Campus—1892-1917

IN 1876 - A COLLEGE

One of the first means the new church inaugurated to insure its own continued leadership and break its provincialism was the avenue of Christian education. The history of Calvin College and Seminary closely paralleled that of the church which gave it birth and with whom she was still related. Before the infant denomination was seven years old, a parsonage provided the classroom and a minister the tutelage for the first seminary student. 1876 marked the formal establishment of the theological school, and a literary department was added two years later. By 1920 the full-fledged liberal arts college was named "Calvin" and has since grown into Michigan's largest church-related institution.

The centennial celebration was the most extensive promotional program the Church had ever ventured. It leaned heavily on the school to again supply the needed leadership and talent to successfully accomplish its objectives. Heading the vast machinery was Seminary President John Kromminga, who led the synodical committee and delivered centennial messages around the continent.

The Calvin Oratorio Society was joined by local church choirs to provide the music for the Grand Rapids centennial rally. And in Chicago, the A Cappella Chior appeared for a rally audience of over 12,000.

The mailing of posters, banks, and place mats was a formidable task in itself. The centennial office, staffed by Calvin people, was then filled by extra student volunteers.

Former Calvin Thespian Ted Andriese narrated the local performance of the centennial pageant. Most members of the effective speaking choir were also students or alumni.

Sight-sound projects helped bring the centennial message to the churches. Back of the scenes in their production were Calvin faces Syd Youngsma, George Werkema, Ananda Perara, and Casey Wondergem.

BLOWING OUT THE CANDLES...

The Calvin scene in the centennial pageant was appropriately cast with present students wearing the garb of collegians from the "Gay 90's" to the present.

The school's music department provided invaluable service throughout the celebration, but especially in the pageant which featured the original score of Sherman Van Solkema and was performed by the orchestra and choir under the direction of Harold Geerdes and Seymour Swets.

AND GIVING "SPARK" TO NEW FIRES

On February 27 and 28, capacity audiences enthusiastically received the premiere performances of "On This Rock," the centennial pageant. Calvin instructor Betty Duimstra penned the inspiring script in dignified and artistic style. The scenes moved swiftly against a breathtaking background of professional direction and staging by Calvin grads Edgar and Ervina Boeve. As other Christian Reformed communities gave their interpretations of this story of the church, new significance was added to the timeless creed of the church of all ages, "I believe in God . . ."

Centennial chairman Dr. John Kromminga and centennial manager Casey Wondergem.

A cast of 160 assisted by 150 musicians staged "On This Rock" for Grand Rapids audiences in February and were to repeat it for the international centennial synod in June.

For the youth of '57, the year spelled uncertainty. After graduation, he faced the army. And now with war in the Suez, revolt among the Russian satellites, the development of nuclear weapons in Britain . . .

ACCOMPANIED BY BOMBS AND BOMBAST

The celebration of the centennial was only one ingredient that determined the shape of 1957 for Calvin. Bold headlines rocked the world. It was a Presidential election year, and Grand Rapids caught the spirit. Visiting Estes Kefauver was barely able to keep the stage from the grinning Michigander with the polka-dot bow tie. Dick and Pat Nixon were greeted by cheering thousands along the streets and no less enthusiasm on the campus.

Russian oppression was met by courageous armed revolt in Hungary, and local residents were forced from their ivory towers with the arrival of bedraggled refugees. In Upper Michigan, the world's longest suspension bridge over the Straits of Mackinac pressed for completion by next hunting season. And there was local news: a murder in quiet Holland, Grand Rapids' first bank robbery in years, a spectacular fire at the American Excelsior plant.

On the campus there was talk. Dr. Harry Overstreet offered his mental cure-all for the troubled times and failed to win a convert. The renowned Dr. Paul Tillich proved even modern theology was a confusion of ambiguous terms and loaded phrases. Meanwhile Calvin professors were also in demand as guest speakers. Prof. Lester De Koster was one such, especially after the publication of his new book, ALL YE THAT LABOR.

Neither a church birthday or a turbulent world finally determined the shape of 1957 at Calvin. It was the people—individuals for whom the year had many meanings. Like Dr. Charles Miller. In the light of the Mid-East crisis, his wise analyses gained him new respect. Already the possessor of a large student following, the community, too, began to study his pertinent comments.

Being neither Dutch nor Christian Reformed, John Ramsey could hardly be as enthusiastic over the year's centennial celebration. Some students branded him a radical. He was better characterized as one who insisted on holding his own views even if some of these were different from those of the Calvin majority—and they sometimes were.

EIGHT FROM TWO THOUSAND

With a speech on her native China, Helen Kalsbeek won this year's oratorical contest. The adopted daughter of an American missionary, and a refugee on the last boat to leave Red China, she had now become a TV-sports-pizza-American. But she still had faith that the Nationalists could some day regain the Chinese mainland.

Dick De Jong was one of the happiest people on the campus. An immigrant himself, he had relatives still in Hungary during the uprising. But he was in America, and that was the promised land to him. A simple courtesy to him would win a response, "Only in America do they treat you the same if you are janitor or professor."

Elaine Last was noticed the moment she stepped on campus, because she was pretty—very pretty. Yet her election to this year's Homecoming Court while yet a freshman amazed her. And while she could have been swamped with dates, she continued to frustrate the bachelors by going steady.

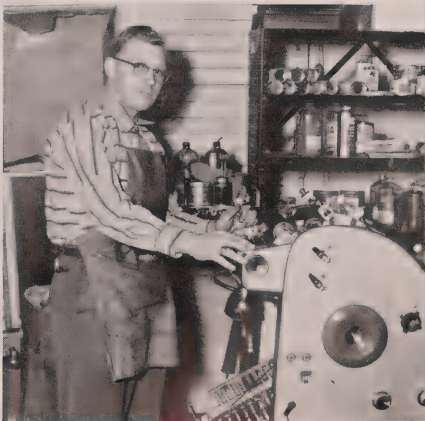

"Pomp and Circumstance" terminated four remarkable years for Norm De Nooyer. One of the most popular campus figures, the Bere Memorial award topped a staggering list of honors and activities in sports, publications, and class activities. His future held a position in his father's thriving Chevrolet outlet. But Norm would never tell anyone this himself. He probably blushed when he read this.

This year brought a diamond to Eleanor Vander Beek. An immensely gifted person, she concluded her Calvin music career with a brilliant senior recital. But after marrying her prospective preacher fiancé, she would probably be using her talent in a modest way as organist and choir director in Waupun or Pipestone.

Graduation would be only a step toward a farther goal for Elton Piersma. Younger students were usually sorry to leave college, but he viewed the entrance to seminary as the attainment of a long-cherished wish. For this father of five, college was no picnic. Study was combined with late hours in his print shop to meet the staggering expenses, and still maintain a satisfactory academic average.

Only a holiday would find the Commons lounge this empty. It served as the host of the campus for pep rallies, banquets, and gab sessions.

BUILDING ON HERITAGE

The pageantry and fanfare of the centennial celebration was clearly audible on the campus, but the students were not overwhelmingly impressed by the brick banks and promotional gimmicks. They were not ungrateful for the doctrinal bulwarks and ethical standards the centuries had left them, but for most of them, Van Raalte and Scholte were only honored names. The youth of 1957 were mainly third and fourth generation Americans desperately trying to shake off the last traces of Dutchiness, and increasing numbers of them were coming to college. The school, like the church, was suffering growing pains. It would have been a significant year for Calvin without a centennial, for facilities were crowded to the breaking point, and she faced the necessity of action. Back from the closets came the question of ecclesiastical support. The junior college movement gained momentum. A special synodical committee attempted to discover a solution to the widely divergent views. No clearcut answer presented itself, but one thing was plain. Calvin could not stand still. The present campus was inadequate, and build we must. Prayerfully, cautiously, and perhaps reluctantly, the Synod of 1956 authorized the purchase of Knollcrest Farm.

WHITE DOME AND WEEPING WILLOWS

No construction was permitted by the synodical decision, but if Knollcrest Farm was ever to become a campus, building opportunities there appeared unlimited. Formerly the estate of industrialist J. C. Miller, the gently rolling 166 acres were developed by him from an orchard, a golf course, and several farms into one of Michigan's most desirable residential properties. An acre and a half artificial lake mirrored a stately English-type manor house, and it was surrounded by nearly four thousand trees. Calvin and Mr. Miller soon became fast friends. As a parting gift, the ailing gentleman presented the school with furnishings and equipment valued at $30,000. The night before he left Knollcrest, the A Cappella Choir, holding its fall outing there, gathered at the vine-covered front door, and for the first time, the Calvin Alma Mater sounded across the gardens and woods. Nostalgically the retired industrialist listened. "This will be a wonderful place for a college." Students thought so, too. The weeping willows were soon as familiar as the white dome.

MARSHMALLOWS IN THE BARN

Without a nail being driven or an excavation dug, Knollcrest soon became distinctively Calvin. The white barn in which young boxers once trained now housed college outings and centennial pageant rehearsals. Hay fields leveled into a cross country course for varsity harriers. In a setting of French provincial furniture, ornate mirrors, and oil paintings, chamber music concerts were held in the manor house. And the island became a stage for Achievement Day.

Formerly forced to use rented or borrowed facilities, the cross country team finally had a home of its own.

Guided tours of Knollcrest were a feature of the Homecoming festivities. Students showed interested alumni through the imposing manor house and across the snow covered lawns.

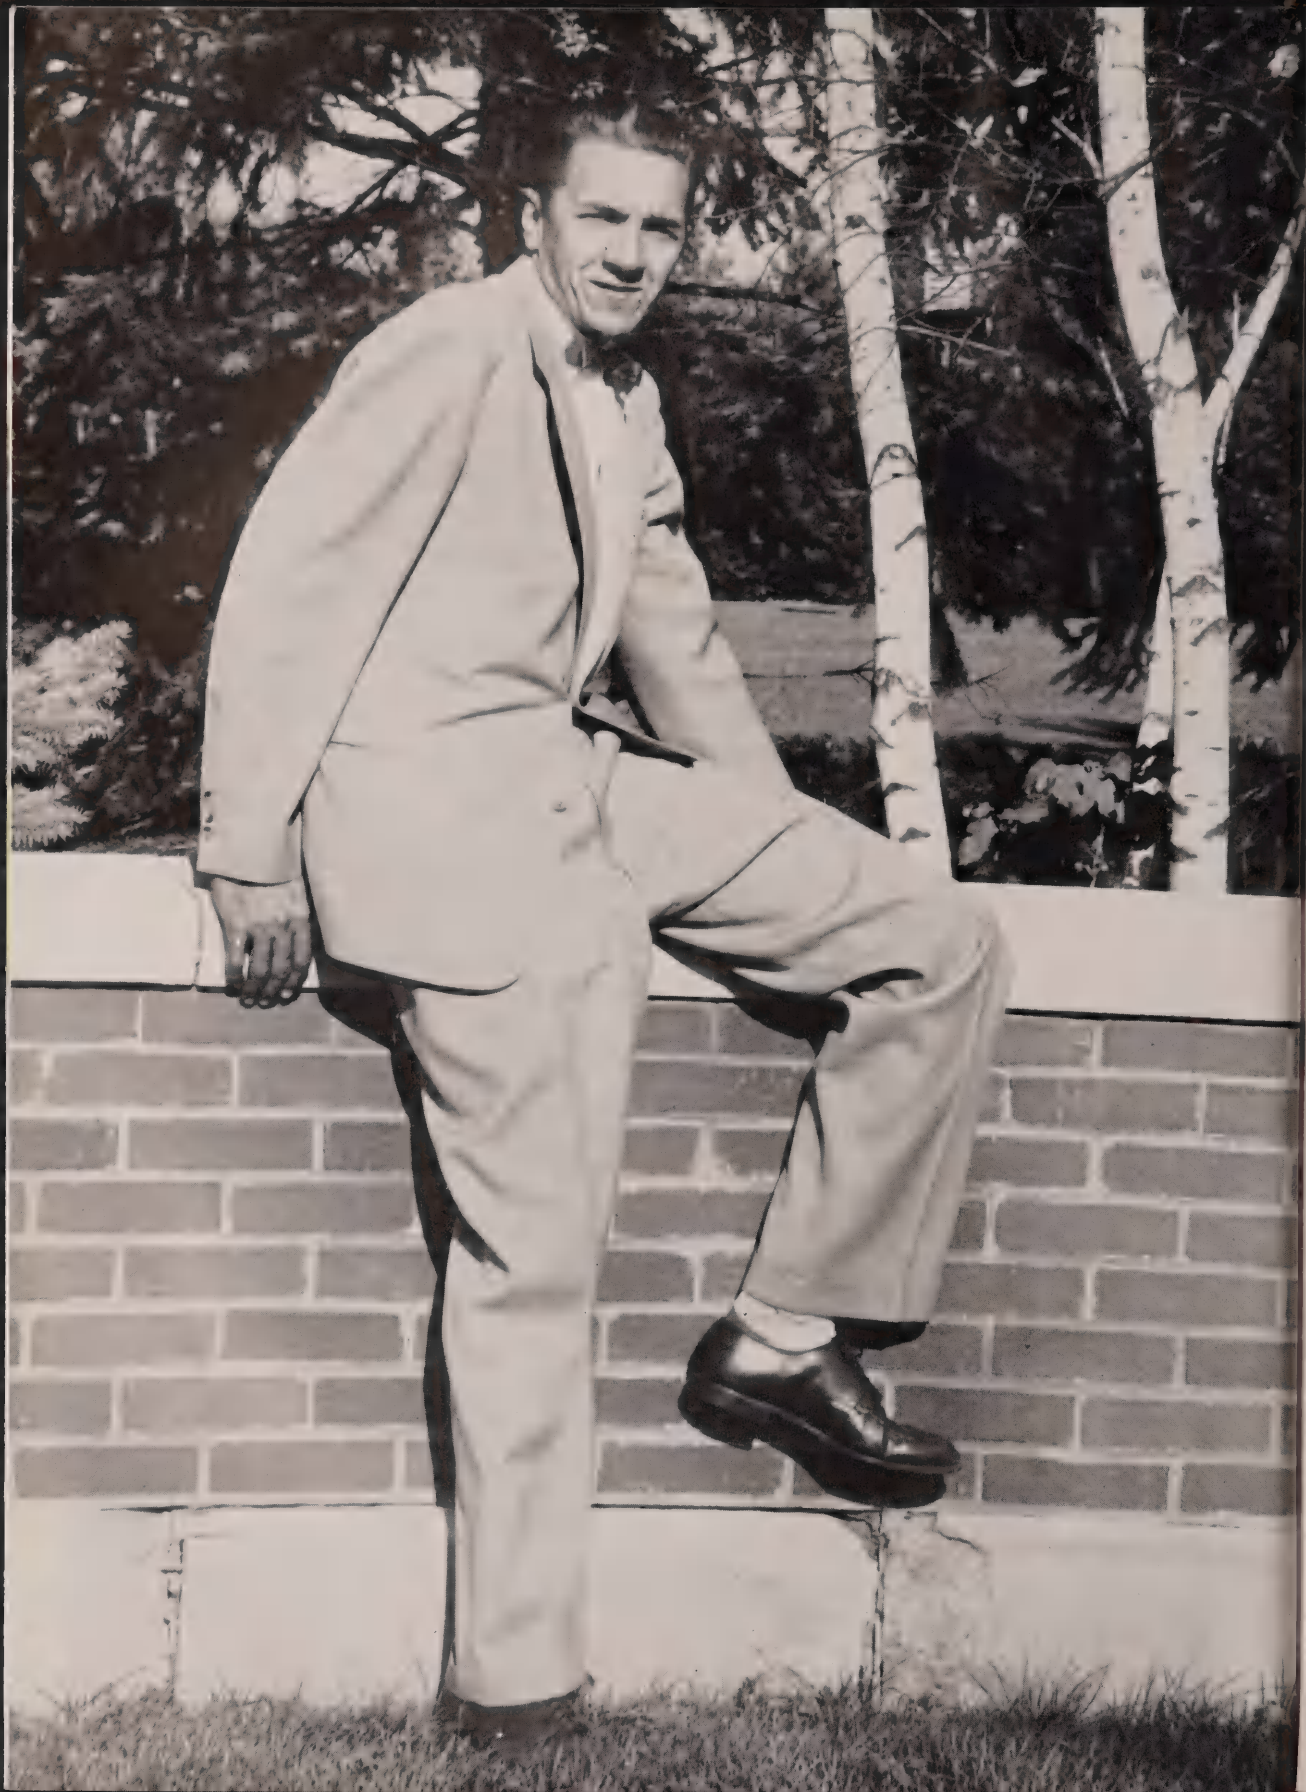

ON CLOUD NINE

Previous synods had already authorized the construction of girls' dormitories, a seminary building, a physical education plant, and a central heating plant. But colleges are not built on clouds.

Misunderstanding and hesitation among the constituency brought expansion to a standstill. The delay was costing months of academic progress and thousands of dollars. Talk had brought a stalemate although the University of Michigan offered $4,000,000 to make the campus their Medical Center.

All that Calvin College could do for the present was hope, dream, and pray—and everyone was doing that.

TO SYD . . .

Far back in the southeast corner of the administration building was a tiny office, barely large enough to hold its desk, two chairs, and a book case. The desk was piled high with a litter of papers—most of them letters, and a few recent campus photographs. On the shelves, within arm's reach, were several versions of the Bible, some commentaries, a copy of HOW TO RAISE FUNDS FOR SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES, and an anthology of jokes. The door bore no nameplate. The tall, dark-complected official who occupied that office changed titles too often. Currently he was known as "Development Secretary," but few knew his title anyway. Across the nation, folks knew he was really a "Calvin Salesman," and they called him just "Syd."

Mr. Sydney Youngsma was called to Calvin in 1952 to manage the mammoth "Needs of Today" campaign. Since that time his duties were expanded, and he has become better known as the school's chief publicity man. He was also a member of the synodical centennial committee. But perhaps most significant of all, Mr. Youngsma's job is Calvin's future. Serving on the long-range planning committee, he was one of those most responsible for the acquisition of Knollcrest.

Syd believes the Calvin dream can become a reality. By his genial and witty cooperation and his confidence in young people, he is an inspiration to his associates, an example of Christian faith in action to all he meets. The 1957 PRISM is dedicated to Syd, the Calvin Salesman.

FOR LESSONS IN LEADERSHIP

If building on heritage were limited to dreams of low-slung college halls on a lush new campus or centennial banks to rally funds "as building blocks in gratitude," Calvin College should certainly close its doors for failing in its true objective. Actually, Calvin began to build on heritage in the uneasy days of Reconstruction after the Civil War, when in his gaslit home, Dominie Vander Werp instructed the first seminary students. In 1957, the school continued its eighty-one-year-old task of building young lives—seven-teen hundred of them from twenty-six states and half a dozen foreign countries who came here for lessons in leadership. They worshipped here. They studied. They talked and they wrote. They played. Their activities formed the montage ambiguously referred to as "college life," a way of doing things, a state of mind that could never be limited by the boundaries of a city block on Franklin Street.

GOD WAS AT COLLEGE...

He was not limited to a paragraph in the catalogue or a fifteen minute chapel service. He was present in every lecture hall and could be seen through a laboratory test tube or a philosophy treatise. Sometimes He was more obscure, and it took a group discussion at a club meeting to find Him. He read every page of student printed thought and heard young speakers debate current issues. He appeared in a glorious way at the performance of an oratorio. He watched young bodies in honest competition, and He smiled. And in the quiet darkness of a student's room, He spoke through the Word on which the whole campus was built. The student found that God was at college.

Group singing voiced student praise at chapel three times weekly.

... WE WORSHIPPED HIM

Individual devotions found expression in public worship. Two Sunday services were attended out of choice by most students at nearby Calvin Church or one of the other forty Christian Reformed congregations of the area. They did not have as much choice in the attendance of chapel services each morning.

Once a week, students took over the platform from professors and visiting ministers, and led their fellow students in devotions.

NUMBERS AND ROBOTS

"Attention please, schedule advisors," the voice boomed over the loudspeaker. "English one-oh-three-double-yew is closed. English 103W." After five hours of being jostled through interminable lines and of filling out endless forms, the frustrated freshman turned back from his place at the end of the registration line and headed back to his schedule advisor.

College was a forebodingly impersonal place to the newcomer. Classes were just numbers in the catalogue—this year there were over three hundred and fifty listed courses. Professors seemed robots with a recorded message, "What is your course? Room 327 please." Over all hung the shadow of the omniscient office with its voluptuous files of records and receipts.

But the robots came to life during the faculty-senior softball game at the Mixing Bowl. Professors proved human chaperoning the coop hayride. And classes were as varied as their teachers. "Organo-bio-chemistry," "dynamics," "Victorian poetry," and "counterpoint" were measured in concepts.

THIS IS THE YEAR!

Everywhere throughout the Church which owns and operates Calvin College, the word "centennial" is in great prominence. This is the year!

There is much to be gained by focusing special attention on significant deeds and events in history. In our case, the Church and the College, in the year 1957, are placed at a vantage point from which to take a backward look, a forward look, and an upward look, for we have reached the centennial mark. That makes the year 1957 significant for all of us who are part of the College and who share in the fellowship of our Church.

However, there can be something rather artificial about centennials. After all, each year can be a centennial of some event. Each year is important in its own right and is the occasion for which a later centennial will be born.

This is the year—as is every year—of important events; of crucial decision; of God, through history, molding forces which will play upon events of future years. And YOU are part of that process. This is YOUR year—a God-given year—and YOU are part of its history. It was in this consciousness that the Psalmist penned this hope: "Teach us to number—understand—our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

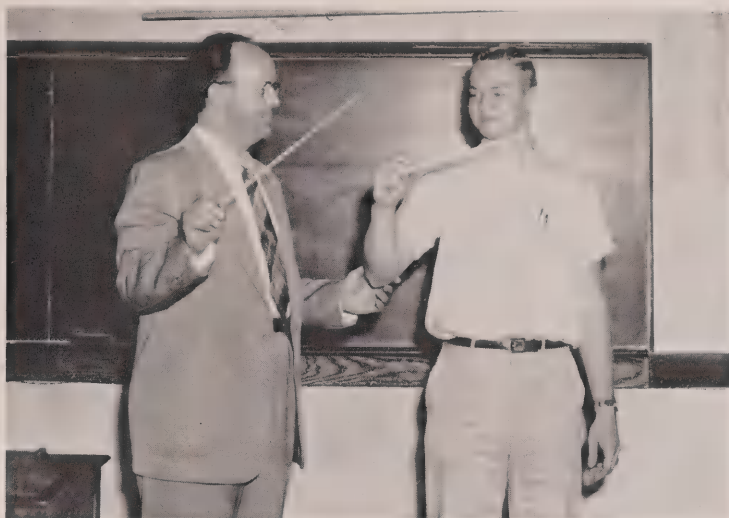

Only when this sense of personal participation is appropriated can any centennial celebration be significant for us. The worthwhileness of our Centennial can be measured only by the extent to which these observances are carried on through personal self-evaluation in the light of God's Word. Doing this, we shall appropriate the past, and the year 1857 will become part of the year 1957, which, by God's grace, will become part of any other centennial He will permit.

This is the year! May it be a year in which you understand, by God's grace, your relationship to Him, permitting you to say: "For to me to live is Christ . . ."

BRASS FOR EVERY BOTTLENECK

The huge business called Calvin College employed almost six hundred people during 1957. Of this army, 164 worked full time. Supplementing a full-time faculty of sixty-four were twenty-seven part-time assistants. Eight others worked exclusively in administration. Records and receipts occupied a full-time clerical staff of twenty-one with fifteen part-time employees. The Commons required twenty-eight regular workers and additional services of almost 100 students. Eight librarians and twenty-five students worked in the library. Maintenance included fifteen men.

Too much brass? Perhaps, but there were many bottlenecks.

EVEN GREEK LETTERS

"Will you please try to borrow a coat? Otherwise I must ask you not to appear in the picture."

The long-suffering organizations editor had been giving the same speech for two weeks. It was a formidable task to pose twenty club pictures within ten school days—all in the brief periods when no one was in class. A new coat and tie rule of an ornery editor didn't help matters any.

The extensive club program at Calvin was a curious campus phenomenon. The absence of either social or professional fraternities and sororities may have been a factor that added new clubs to the roster every year. Some of these organizations even took Greek letter names.

A club could indicate anything from a vital group discussion by a loyal membership to a group which was primarily a name and got its biggest turnout for the PRISM picture. There were clubs for talk and for listening, for athletes and for philosophers. Some club was meeting somewhere during the middle of every week.

FREUD WAS PSYCHOANALYZED

Now in its sophomore year, the Psychology Club worked with ink blot tests only for PRISM pictures. Their meetings featured guest speakers or group discussions of pertinent books.

A growing Calvin interest in sociology and social work again boosted the membership of the Sociology Club. Member students augmented meetings with practical work at such places as the Methodist Community House.

Since meetings of the Women's Literary Clubs were always held at the homes of the members, the casual observer was never able to find out how that many girls could keep talking that long solely about literature. Prof. Tiemersma was coyly noncommittal.

MUSCLE-BOUND MINSTRELS

Advertized as a "gala non-culture event," the two night stand of the Varsity Varieties Mirthquake Minstrels swelled the generous treasury of the Varsity Club. The members of one of the most active and perhaps most vocal campus clubs donated some of the proceeds to purchase equipment for Rev. Callender in Harlem.

The highlight of the year for the Engineering Club was the field trip to Chicago. It is not clear whether this was an engineer's or an engineered project.

QUARTER EXTRA FOR WHITEWALLS

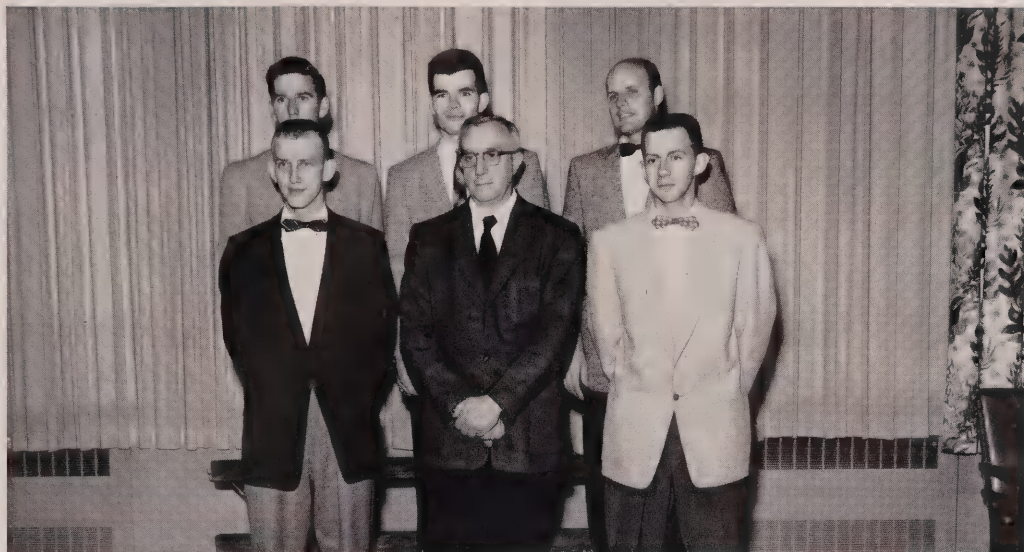

A systematic chronological study of French literature offered subject material for papers and discussion by the Men's Literary Club in the informal atmosphere of puffing pipes and stocking feet.

In the back of the photo files lay an excellent shot of the October Sophomore Car Wash, but the dummy did not allow space for it. The Plato Club saved the day by declining its extra picture to allow room for the ambitious sophs and add another fifty cents to the account of Photographer Vanden Bosch.

MOLIERE, MENDELSSOHN AND MIKE

The Musicians' Guild project for their January meeting was singing of madrigals. Meeting according to whim rather than schedule, most of its members were long-suffering music majors already staggering under near-impossible practice schedules and term paper assignments.

Reorganized after a year's absence from the campus roster, the French Club entertained continental Mme Durrah in December. After hearing her descriptions of France, even the most lukewarm member placed Paris on his dream itinerary.

Spending Sunday afternoons more profitably than most, the members of the two-year-old Youth Fellowship took turns in leading the discussion of the Minor Prophets during their bi-weekly study sessions.

Once one of the school's largest clubs, Phi Tau Kappa (Greek initials of plain old Future Teachers' Club) drew their largest crowd for the fall picnic. They held Christian Education Week in November.

WHEN THERE WAS SOMETHING TO SAY

"What will be the policy this year in regard to censorship?" the editor asked. The inevitable question was finally on the floor. The faculty Publications Committee was holding its annual "get-acquainted" coffee meeting with the student editors, and after last year's "Review" squabble . . .

"Has your paper ever been subjected to censorship in the past?" The President returned a question.

"Not to my knowledge, sir."

"We anticipate no change in policy."

There was no real censorship in 1957, but the fur flew when a new editor was to be elected. Now in its fiftieth year, the "Chimes" appeared weely, but burning issues were isolated.

"Write—Deadline November 3 . . . 16 . . . 26 . . . December 12." The "Literary Review" advertised for copy and kept extending deadlines. Why should a growing student body produce so little creative writing? There were two issues this season, but this time the censors had nothing to censor.

The PRISM picture was brighter. The possibility of a new campus, a church centennial, and an election year gave more new material than they could handle.

More vocal student opinion was expressed as forensic groups crisscrossed the state. Sometimes they won. Oftener they didn't.

But young ideas are hard to suppress. When there was something to say, it was usually said.

The 1957 PRISM was born in March, 1956. By May, staff heads were selected and the material was outlined. During "vacation" the layout and cover took shape. By October, the staff numbered over seventy-five. The final copy left the office on April fifteen. Books will not be closed until August. Total time in production: eighteen months.

Wednesday afternoon in the "Chimes" office—the wheels were wheeling.

Few campus projects are as severely criticized as "Chimes." Though it appears only once a week, its readers demand it be completely current, an opinion sounding board, a humor magazine, a "Saturday Review." Success varied, but occasionally an issue appeared which all agreed was outstanding. Such was the memorial issue on Dr. Zylstra in December.

Editor Nyenhuis presented the Eerdman's Literary Awards to winner Faith Holtrop and runners up Dirk Jellema, Bill Oldenburg, and Ralph Smilde, and dedicated this issue to the memory of Dr. Zylstra. There would be a spring issue, she said, if . . .

Forensic students were by necessity versed in current affairs. Debate topic for the year was, "Resolved: That the U.S. should discontinue economic aid to foreign countries." The discussion topic was no less controversial, "What should the role of the U.S. be in the Middle East?" As yet, there have been no student U.N. appointments.

At the Interpretative Reading Contest held in March, Gloria Goris and Larry Dykstra won the right to represent Calvin at the state festival.

NEW FIELDS FOR FORENSICS

The Forensic Board, composed of debate's J. Monsma, extemp's J. Haagsma, interp's R. Schut, Prof. M. Berghuis, Chairman D. Dyker, Miss A. Janssen, discussion's S. Boelkins, and oratory's N. Meyer, took over a new project. A newly formed Speech Bureau sent forensic groups out for programs on request. This group also supervised Calvin's second TV series.

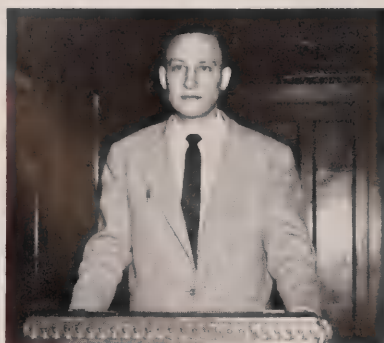

Zondervan Peace Oratory winner Pete Huiner placed third at state competition in Detroit.

Helen Kalsbeek's first-hand reasons to "Keep Red China Out" won her a first place in the women's division of the local Peace Contest.

Ken Verberg placed first in the men's local extemporaneous speaking contest. Topic for this year was: "What should the U.S. policy be in the Middle East?"

A natural talker, Janet Bonnema went to state contests in discussion, extemporaneous speaking, and women's oratory.

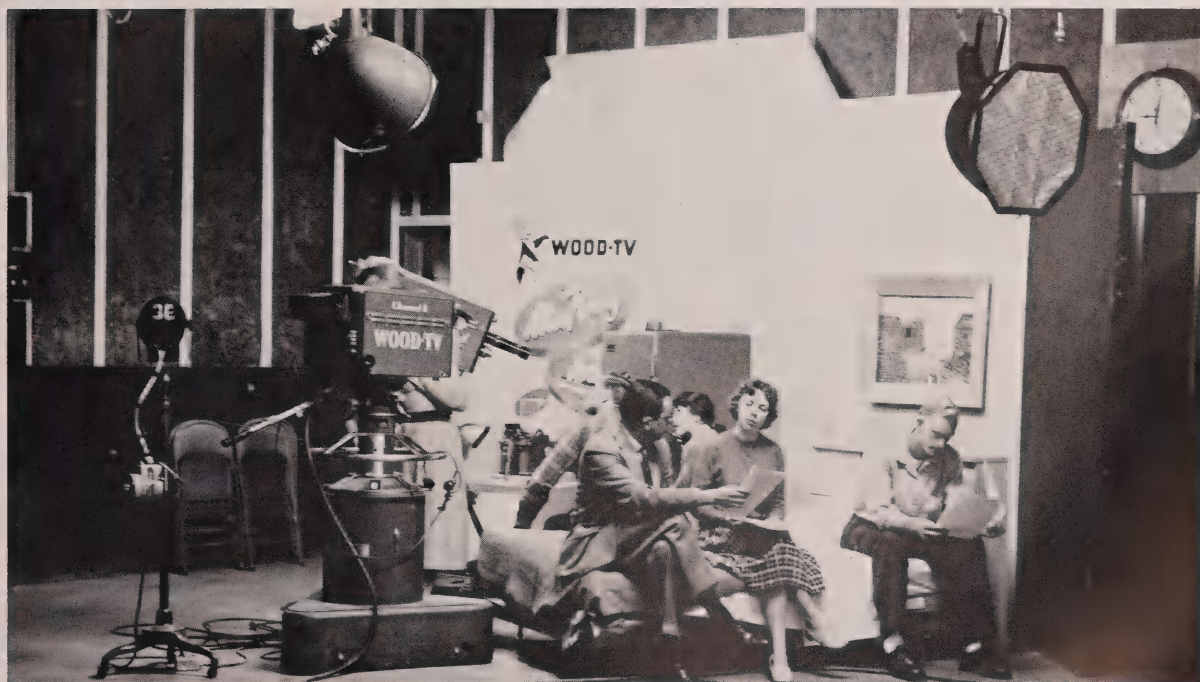

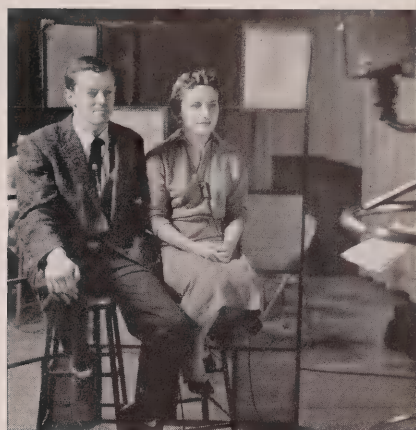

Hank Hart won his second oratory award with this year's Broodman contest.

WOOD-TV's "College Omnibus" presented four Calvin programs this season. Technically, they were not masterpieces. An indifferent production crew did not add to the peace of mind of the inexperienced student performers. The series attempted to present Calvin academically, artistically, socially, and in its community impact.

Harlan Boerigter and Gloria "Floris" Goris repeated Alumnite performances as narrators for the third TV show. Each program used the technique of an informal narrator.

"Masterminding" the productions were the dozen members of the "TV Workshop" who spent one evening weekly at the WOOD station to learn television broadcasting techniques. The first show, for example, used "Workshop" talent in performing, script, sets, and direction.

THE SPIRIT GUM WAS HARDLY DRY

It was the opening night at the play. The weeks of line-repeating, nail-pounding, brush-swishing, and furniture-chasing were over. Now it was too late to make any further changes.

"Places, everyone!" The assistant director stood downstage studying his clipboard. An "old" man came running down the hall from the makeup room and burst on stage, still holding his beard in place where the spirit gum was not quite dry. The leading man fidgeted outside the door where he was to make his first entrance. Someone gave him a reassuring pat on the back and whispered, "Good luck." The sets crew pulled up stools to wait for the first scene change twenty-five minutes away. At the semi-darkness of the switch panel, four hands poised, ready to light the stage with a flick when the signal came. An overalled boy strained at the curtain ropes. It was very quiet.

"OK, kill the house lights!"

With a final glance at his clipboard, the assistant director hurried into the wings.

"Curtain!"

Calvin has long used the performing arts as a chief way to meet the public. The oldest and the youngest of these organizations are in the vocal music department. Oratorios have been presented twice annually for over thirty years. The A Cappella and Radio Choirs have performed for audiences from coast to coast. Only five years old, but demanding increasing attention was the popular student directed male chorus, the Meistersingers. These men were now receiving more invitations than any other Calvin group, and growing out-of-state interest could soon precipitate a reappraisal of music department tour policy.

The robe room might have been the basement corner of a church, a high school laboratory, or a committee room of the town hall, but the A Cappella Choir soon took it over for rehearsal and rehash. Audiences in five states heard the seventy voice Calvin choir in person, and thousands more heard their centennial pageant performance by recording.

REHEARSAL IN THE LAB

Any white tie and tails performance is preceded by hours of sweat in shirtsleeves.

ORATORIO BOARD: Standing: Librarians L. Van Essen and V. Laninga. Seated: President M. Essenburg, Secretary R. Schut, and Vice-president T. Dykstra.

"Messiah" Soloists: M. Nosler, H. Gezon, R. Speaker, and R. Marsh.
 "Creation" Soloists: G. Buckley, J. De Jonge, R. Mc Afee.

The "Press" called the "Messiah" crowd "one of the largest" and most appreciative. If the critic had attended a rehearsal of Calvin's oldest musical organization, he would have heard veteran Director Swets give the five hundred choristers the secret to the long-lived success of their performances: "You cannot be lazy in this music, choir! This is an eloquent message, and it demands eloquent singing. This is the gospel!" The Oratorio Society sang the immortal sermons of Handel's "Messiah" and Haydn's "Creation," matching their conductor's conviction with their own—and the audiences caught the spirit.

WITH LOVE FROM A CHORUS

Characteristically collegiate was the music of the only completely student musical organization on campus. The Meistersingers drew increasingly large crowds to their sacred concerts, but for most students, their name called up memories of "Halls of Ivy" and moonlit romance.

"THE MINISTRY OF SACRED MUSIC"

It was a difficult task for the Radio Choir to get enthused about singing for an unseen audience every week. But their "Back to God Hour" performances reached more listeners in one Sunday broadcast than did all the other concert organizations combined over a period of years.

Squeeks and groans came from almost any empty room eighteen hours a day. Somehow, Mr. Geerdes was able to coordinate these varying degrees of musicianship into a Concert Band well established as one of Michigan's finest. Although it was still augmented with community performers, the Orchestra, too, was beginning to turn out creditable performances. Outstanding solo appearances of student recitalists proved that those practice squeeks see results. In addition to campus talent, the instrumental music department sponsored notable recitals by the Chicago Symphony Woodwind Quintet, and the University of Michigan's Stanley String Quartet.

ORCHESTRA: Back Row: J. Heethuis, G. Nyenhuis, Prof. H. Geerdes. Fourth Row: J. Visser, M. Bosma, L. Haan, R. Bloem, C. Spanninga, L. Knot, L. Dykstra, C. Keegstra, C. De Witt, R. Velzen, G. Until the high schools would produce more string players, Calvin could never have an outstanding orchestra. Yet, audiences were pleasantly surprised by the first-rate orchestral performance of Mr. Van Solkema's pageant score and increasingly competent oratorio accompaniment.

A monopoly of the Calvin stage was held by the Thespians again this year. The promising productions of last season's theatre arts and interpretative reading groups were not repeated. However, the fare offered by the veteran drama club was perhaps the best Calvin had seen. Although still plagued by the inconvenience of a rented off-campus auditorium and inadequate workshop and rehearsal space, the finished product was still a polished one, earning its prominent place in the fine arts show window. With heavier and more elaborate productions rose the problem of gaining audiences to meet the challenge of the plays. Unimpressive, though appreciative crowds barely covered the rising production costs.

Once a completely extra-curricular activity, the Thespian Club took another step toward complete academic control with the switch to its first faculty director. Traditions were bound to feel changes. Perhaps the days of the Thespians as a club were numbered, but drama at Calvin would continue to draw those afflicted with "footlight fever."

GREASEPAINT IN THE BLOOD

A play of Ibsen had often been suggested, but never before ventured on the Calvin stage. The fall performances of "An Enemy of the People" bore noteworthy proof that the Thespians had come of age.

Following the unprecedented success of "Merchant of Venice" last spring, the Thespians were encouraged to choose "As You Like It" as their second Shakespeare offering. A stylized Globe Theater-type stage was again used, and the players effectively transformed Ottawa High into the delightful forest of Arden.

Few Thespians saw the complete performances. The properties committee saw only a table of dishes backstage or a cane and umbrella at entrance upper left.

A last-minute nail or an adjusted stage brace was the sets man's view of Ibsen.

FIVE WAYS TO MEET IBSEN

Audiences saw only the famous characters, come to life, dressed in the habit of another day amid speckled walls and ornate furniture.

The costume committee had eyes only for a straightened seam, an adjusted waistband.

Faces aged twenty years and sideburns appeared magically under the deft hands of makeup artists.

YOU CAN'T WIN THEM ALL

"Sure, I'll be on your pitcher. How d'ya want me to stand? With my broom—just like this?"

"Yep, that's swell, Ollie. Just hold that. We'll take a few shots. This will be a whole page in the book, so it will have to be a good one. Hey, somebody go change that scoreboard to last game's score. It will look better on the picture."

The voices echoed in the semi-dark emptiness of the huge Civic Auditorium. Only marked-up programs and crushed popcorn boxes offered proof that just minutes before the rows of bleachers had held six thousand screaming basketball fans. Now, it was so quiet the click of the camera shutter could be heard across the floor.

"Too bad your boys had to lose this one."

"Well, we took the game over at the Civic Center, so that makes us even for the year again. Did you see any of the game, Ollie?"

"Yeah, I watched a little while from the stage. That second half was murder, though. You guys sure ain't got the stuff you used to have."

The shutter clicked again.

"You can't win them all, man. It's a young team yet. Watch them next season. Calvin makes champions. OK, Ollie. That will do it. Thanks."

"Don't forget—I get one of those pitchers!"

The man in dirty work clothes pushed his broom across the basketball floor. And the crew came in to start tearing down the bleachers.

THE KING BOWED OUT

Basketball is the King of Calvin athletics. This season attracted over 20,000 spectators to ten home games; it has provided Calvin with more championships than all of the remaining sports combined; and it was intramurally participated in by hundreds of Calvin students.

At the outset of the 1956-57 cage campaign, it was apparent that this was to be a rebuilding season, and a creditable 10-10 record attested it to have been a successful one. Calvin's three year reign over the MIAA was jeopardized, since graduation had claimed the services of five experienced Knights, and Coach Barney Steen had only one time-tested regular returning from the title fives.

Inexperience breeds inconsistency, and the Knight's showing proved this statement to be valid. Frigid performances against top MIAA foes like Albion and Kalamazoo were matched by torrid triumphs over these same opponents.

While finishing fifth in the MIAA with an 8-6 league mark, Calvin split victories with the conference's top four teams, but a pair of disastrous defeats at the hands of sixth-place Alma cost the Knights a title share.

Triumph and tragedy ushered in the 1956-57 season as the Steenmen sparked in victories over Ferris and Adrian, but sputtered in losses to Central Michigan and Alma. A lack-luster win over Hillsdale and three consecutive defeats worried even the Knights' most optimistic supporters. It appeared that Calvin was on its way to only its second losing season since 1934. However when arch-rival Hope fell, 64-61, before the improving Maroon and Gold, all was forgiven.

Following the Hope victory, the Knights were on the rebound. Only a 72-65 ambush by an upsurgent Alma five and a narrow loss to Adrian dropped Calvin from contention for a fourth straight loop diadem. Calvin's final defeat of the season proved to be one of its finest performances. Against Wheaton, a team which proceeded to capture the NCAA small college championship, the Knights flashed an improved attack which bolsters hopes for next year's title aspirations.

Reserve pivotmen Bernie Zondervan and Dave Tubergen are lost by graduation, but the remainder of the team should benefit from the year's experience. Possibly the 1956-57 season will be just an interim between "golden eras"—and a creditable interim at that.

The Knights' second round improvement was due in a large measure to the classy floorplay of second-semester addition Bill Morgan.

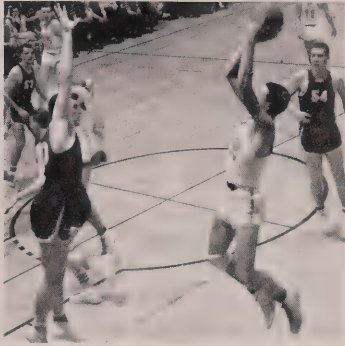

Tom Newhof was the team's leading scorer with 330 points and was honored for his efforts with a berth on the "Herald's" All-MIAA team.

Static and statistics were provided by WOOD's sports announcer Al Ackerman, Statistician Ron Pothoven, and half-time windbag Syd Youngsma.

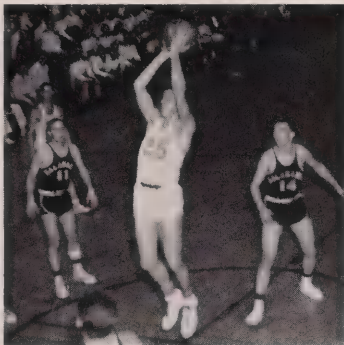

Cheerleaders E. Post, A. De Vries, M. De Vries, A. Van Andel, J. Vander Wall, A. Riemersma, K. Poll, E. Kuiper.

Ed Start, showing cat-quick reflexes and a deadly jump shot, placed second in Calvin's scoring parade with 225 points.

Freshman Dave Vander Hill copped a starting berth in his first season and provided needed point production.

Basketball managers Ken Van Dellen, Dennis Taatjes, and Don Coray.

A PROVING GROUND

One of the important factors in the success of any Calvin basketball squad is the effort and performance of the Reserve team. Under the direction of Dave Tuuk, the Junior squad has served as a "proving ground" for many players who became stars for the Varsity in later years. This year was no exception as was illustrated by Dave Vander Hill, a freshman from Holland, who made the jump from the reserve team to the starting five in one season.

Although the 1956-1957 season was not the most successful one, it still had its high points. Coach Tuuk sent his proteges into competition a total of 15 times, the results of which were a modest 6-9 won and lost record. However, victories over arch-rivals Hope and Aquinas gave some satisfaction to an otherwise unsatisfactory season.

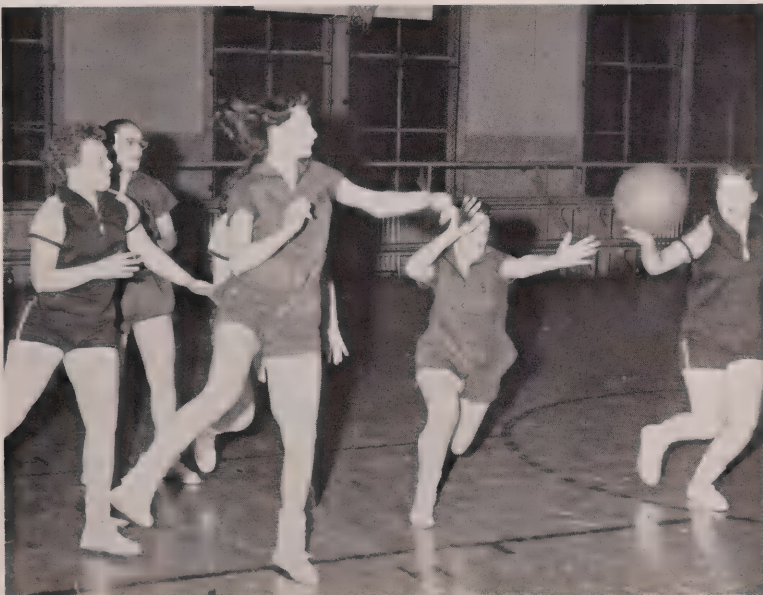

IN THE PIN-UP LEAGUE

The Knighties, who under the tutelage of Miss Nell Oosthoek had not been beaten since January of '55, maintained their winning ways through the first nine games of the 1956-57 season to run their consecutive wins string to twenty-four games. They completed their regular season play with ten wins and one loss. However, they were eliminated from capturing their third championship in as many years when NuWay Sales defeated them in the Pin-Up League championship play-off game.

The leading scorer for Miss Oosthoek's squad this season was Freshman Wilma Hagedorn, who after going scoreless the first three games of the season, came back to score a total of 123 points in eleven games for a 11.1 point average. Wilma's greatest single contribution was 26 points against Westside Merchants.

With only one squad member being lost via the graduation route, Nell and the Knighties are anticipating another successful season next year—and maybe another championship.

MILES OF ENDURANCE

Reserve harriers: D. Gaffin, L. Kragt, J. Beezhold, B. Greenfield, D. Koopman.

In contrast to the highly publicized fall football of the major universities, Calvin's fall sport, cross country, is of an individual nature and of limited spectator interest. The four mile course, which extends over fields, through winding trails, and across rough and even terrain, is a contest of body and mind.

The Calvin harriers posted a 4-2 record in dual competition but dropped to fifth place in the MIAA conference meet, and finished in fourth place. The surprise team of the season was Kalamazoo which displaced Albion, the perennial powerhouse, as champion.

Sophomore Bob Korthuis again paced the team, but he was aided by the fine performances of Don Greenfield, Ken Tanis, and Tom Koopman; all who will be returning lettermen in the coming season. But graduation depleted the ranks by claiming Pete Steen and Bernie Greenfield, four year lettermen, and Jim Beezhold, a three year performer.

The cross country mainstays: P. Steen, T. Koopman, B. Korthuis, D. Greenfield, C. Stonehouse, K. Tanis, B. De Vries.

UNSUNG SWINGERS

Competing in what is undoubtedly the most unsung sport on campus, the 1956 Calvin golf squad didn't win many matches but sure had a lot of fun. With Coach John Vanden Berg even getting into the act on occasion, the Knights had a "ball" as they rolled up a 2-8 season record, finishing sixth in the MIAA. Team stalwarts were Bill Kooistra, Bill Weidenaar, Lew Brasser, Warren Smoot, and Joe Schneider.

Competing for Coach Vanden Berg in the 1957 season were Weidenaar, Schneider, Jim Beezhold, Bill Eskes, Bob Howard, Phil Vanden Berge, John Bielema, and Gary Vander Ark.

The 1957 divot-diggers finished seventh in the MIAA Tournament at Kalamazoo and cast a hopeful glance toward a higher standing in the coming season.

The 1956 Calvin baseball team surprised their MIAA competitors when they went through the season with only three defeats, netting them a third place finish. Although the team collected only one home run, their success can be attributed to tremendous hitting power. Led by all-conference players John Kloosterman with .495 and Arnie Rottman with .395, the top six hitters tallied a .367 average. The overall team average was just under .300. John Kloosterman possessed the best earned-run average on the pitching staff at 4.4. Another all-MIAA choice, Arnie Rottman, saved the infielders from many an apparent error with his ability to snag the ball on first base. Fine base running, led by Mike Vanden Bosch and Norm De Nooyer, was another contributing factor to the third place finish.

With only two of the six .300 hitters returning this spring, the team's success was dependent to a great extent on the pitching staff. With the aid of veteran John DeMey, the addition of hurler Karl DeJonge, along with lettermen Clete Brummel and Len Holstege and a couple freshmen hopefuls, the 1957 Calvin baseball squad boasted the timber of a title contender. The 1957 Knights posted an 8-6 record in MIAA play, which was good for third place in the final standings. In all its games, the diamond squad amassed a 9-10 mark.

THE TORTOISE AND THE HARE

Despite fine individual performances, the track team could not muster better than a fifth place finish last year. The squad, comprised largely of freshmen, was strong in the hurdles, javelin, discus, and distance events. Jerry Holwerda, a freshman, smashed teammate Duane Vander Brug's low hurdles record with a :25.2 performance.

This spring Coach Dave Tuuk welcomed nine returning lettermen. The perennial problem of lack of depth still remained, but the team promised to be much stronger, since the Knights had a skilled contender in nearly every event.

The hurdles department was one of the brightest as two veterans, Vander Brug and Holwerda were returning. Other running events also had capable representation. Pete Steen, one of Calvin's better distance runners, competed in both the mile and the two mile. The 880 yard run was manned by sophomores Bert De Vries and Chip Stonehouse. Bob Korthuis, a top quarter-man in the MIAA, again headed this department. The Knight's weakest point, the dashes, appeared to have been aided with the arrival of Rich Hertel, a highly regarded freshman. Other 1957 mainstays were Mel Veenema, current record holder, with Bob Korthuis and Rod Van Wyk in the javelin event, letterman Al Vander Griend and freshman Lee Kragt in the discus, shotputter Dave Altena, and 880-yard runner Julian Aukeman.

The 1957 track team closed its dual competition with a creditable 6-3 record. In the rain-soaked MIAA Conference Meet at Kalamazoo, the Knights finished fourth.

Since entering MIAA competition in the spring of 1954, the women's tennis team continued to progress until last year they were able to tie Kalamazoo for the championship. Calvin compiled a 5-1 record which included double victories over Kalamazoo and Aquinas Colleges and a split with Hope. The crown contenders included Nancy Postmus, a hard swinger, who was supported by Evie Algra, Ruth Beukema, and Lois De Groot. Truda Bonnema, Jean Heynen, Bev Klooster, Marge Vanden Bosch, and Barb Verbridge rounded out Coach Nell Oosthoek's squad. This season's squad was unable to repeat as MIAA champs, however the feminine netters posted a creditable 5-2 record in dual competition.

INTEGRATION ON THE COURTS

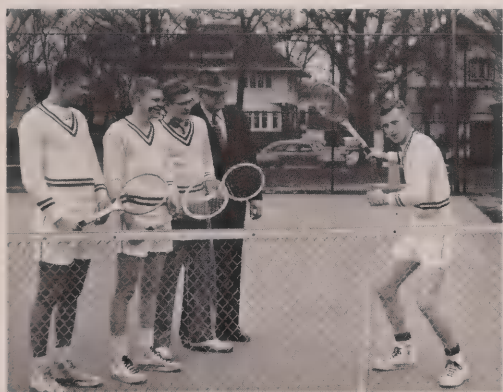

For the men's tennis team, 1956 was what might be called an average season. Under new coach Al Lewen, they compiled a 5-4 won and lost record for the year. Four ex-Holland Christian stars provided the nucleus of the Calvin squad which finished fourth in the MIAA. Starters were Rich Sharda, Paul Dykema, Jim Kok, Rog Boer, and Bill Kooistra.

The 1957 Knights finished their regular season competition with a 4-5 record. In MIAA play, the tennis team posted a 3-4 mark while the MIAA Tournament at Kalamazoo was washed out. Positions vacated by the graduation of Kok and Boer were filled by Ken Zandee, Bill Doezema, Warren Boer, and Ed Meyering.

AN IDEAL PERPETUATED

Since 1951, The Bere Memorial Award has honored the senior outstanding in athletic ability, character, scholastic standing, and extra-curricular participation. The 1957 choice of the coaches, the faculty athletic committee, and the Varsity Club representative was Norm De Nooyer, a General College student from Battle Creek, Michigan. For four years Norm excelled in baseball, being named to the MIAA all-conference team in his freshman year. A winning personality and executive ability won him the confidence of his classmates, and he was elected vice-president of the class of '57 in his junior year, president in his senior year. With his high scholastic and extra-curricular achievements, Norm was an outstanding example of the ideals of Calvin athletics.

Perserverance was the password that placed swimming on the growing roster of Calvin inter-collegiate sports. Determined candidates coached by Dr. Carl Sinke and Phil Van Heest held regular workouts at the YMCA pool, and a surprisingly coordinated squad showed commendable performances in a meet with Albion and two with Grand Rapids Junior College.

FLOURISHING FARM CLUBS

Varsity sports permitted only a limited participation. But a complete intramural program included a dozen-odd activities to challenge the novice athletes. Hundreds of students joined the keen competition from the beginning of fall football to the softball tournament in the spring.

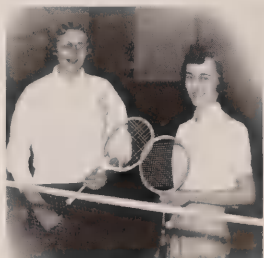

Ping pong was a long-established intramural activity. This year's tournament was run in April.

For the second year, student bowling leagues were organized. An overwhelming number of devotees formed three separate leagues which continued through the winter, held playoffs to determine the championship.

Basketball was still the favorite of the amateur athletes, especially among the men. Competition and team loyalties were almost as strong as in their varsity counterpart.

A VACANT LOT

Badminton tournaments were scheduled after spring vacation for both a singles and doubles division.

Calvin may not have had an official football team, but the king of fall sports still claimed many enthusiastic,—and often skilled intramural teams. Their uniforms: anything would do. The stadium: the vacant east campus.

BECAME A STADIUM

A live turkey was the booty given to the winner of the fall cross-country meet, the "Turkey Trot."

The girls were usually the more adept in intramural volleyball, but the sport drew almost as many men's teams.

TONIGHT WAS WORTH IT ALL

"It's been a wonderful evening, Bob. Don't you think the banquet was nice?"

"The operetta surprised me. I didn't know our class could do it . . . Doesn't seem possible that it's banquet time already, you know it?"

"I can still remember the Mixing Bowl. I think that was the first time I saw you—across the bonfire. I asked someone who you were."

"And that hayride! I don't think I ever did get all that stuff out of my hair, really."

"I never told you this, but I sat at the phone for half an hour before I twirled you to the Thespian play last fall."

"Were you sorry?"

"Hum-um . . . But you did make me break my exam time resolution. I was going to stop going out with you so often so that I could stay home and study."

"Yes, but we couldn't miss Homecoming, or those concerts, or that dinner date, or those basketball games, or the play—or tonight."

"Tonight alone was worth it all . . . And to think we have another whole year here together . . . I hope the summer hurries! I'll miss you so . . ."

BIG SISTERS AND BUTTERFLIES

A mountain of forms and fees faced the new students at registration. Some of them would have turned right back home if it hadn't been for the assistance of upperclassmen such as the "big sisters."

Just a couple of Commons meals or the experience of unpacking into a tiny shared closet was enough to convince a student that college wasn't like home. Yet, strangely enough, the place soon became more of a home than the one just left.

Oh, the aching hands after the Freshmen-Faculty Tea! And the butterflies when the freshmen were introduced to the President! Later they found he wasn't quite as scary as they had thought.

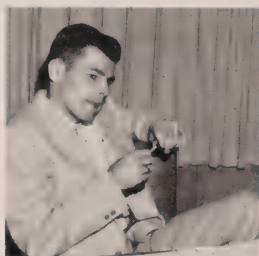

The uneasy freshman remained a stranger only as long as he wanted to. The Mixing Bowl bonfire ignited the annual round of fall get-acquainted parties. Soon everyone was getting in the act, and picnics and hayrides became the order of the day. The learning of new names was flavored with nonsense.

NEW NAMES AND NONSENSE

Prexy Vander Brug had to be more than a chairman. A student liaison with the front office, much of his time was spent in talk.

In some cases a figurehead, more often a real influence, the Student Council voiced an increasingly important student role in administrative policy. Student representatives took seats on the chapel, parking, faculty-student relations, and religious and social activities committees. Friday night programs boasted such worthwhile Council-sponsored films as Olivier's "Hamlet" and Disney's "Living Desert." However, all the problems were not easy ones. The ever-pesky publications again demanded attention. Dead for the present was the censorship issue, but now the status and salary of student editors was questioned. Homecoming, with its expanding budget, was more than ever a major project. Calvin-Hope student relations were improved, but still strained. Solutions often crawled at snail's pace due to increasing administrative bureaucracy. Student Council was not itself quite sure of its own powers. But it did not pretend to know all the answers.

REPORTS AND ROBERTS' RULES

"Social" life most of the year was limited to an evening of study at home, or for some, "re- search" work at the library.

At nine-thirty, the library closed, but coffee daters had to leave earlier than that if they wanted to miss the line, for each night the snack shop was full of those who had found or were still looking.

HEADACHE AND HEARTBURN

An unwritten graduation requirement was the bull session. With limited campus lodging facilities, most out-of-town students lived in private homes near school. Study was punctuated by a cigarette and talk—talk about a new book, jazz, money, sex, the army, modernism, God.

SMOKE RINGS AND STEINBECK

Calvin's closest counterparts to sororities were the guild houses, the bulging headquarters of the freshmen girls. These houses were "cooperative" in everything but the regulations; in this they deserved the tag of "coops." Fire escapes were kept from rust by the frequent use of coeds who had overstretched their curfews.

LINGERIE AND LATE LEAVES

Sunday evening "fellowship" of visiting men lasted only until the prettiest girls of the house were going steady, and the rest got tired of making coffee.

The coop dweller who wanted to study was usually relegated to the basement or attic as the only quiet place available.

Every day was wash day when one machine had to serve twenty girls. And to a passerby, the backyard array of unmentionables could hardly escape mention.

BURMA SHAVE AND BUSY SIGNALS

The school's one dormitory housed seventy-five freshmen men. A place in the breakfast line demanded a shower or shave before the rush.

The first warm spring day lured hardly clad residents to the gym roof for the dual purpose of a sun-tan and the novelty of breaking a house rule.

One "out" telephone for three floors led to occasional "complications." The men were so enthusiastic in posing this picture that they were threatened with eviction.

VOTES AND THE VICE- PRESIDENT

Even the coldest observer had to admit after the Vice-President's Calvin visit that Mr. Nixon and his charming wife were master politicians. He promoted a few caustic comments, but Ike's man won the hearts and votes of most of the traditionally Republican student body.

Student office seekers took their cue from the national politicians. The appearance of the voting machine in the Commons was usually heralded by banners and buttons.

On election night, television sets dotted the Commons lounge to announce returns, but the confident crowd began celebrating early. Seldom glancing at the mounting figures, they took to the bunny hop, and serious returns watchers went home.

POSED PICTURES AND PIZZA

Nothing could top off an evening outdoors like pizza. The Italian delicacy was more popular than hamburgers.

Michigan winters may be cold and snowy, but they are perfect for winter parties. The city parks provided tamer hills for some sledders, but for real sport, the toboggan slides of Newaygo or Kalamazoo were required.

During the week before Christmas vacation, the neighborhood was full of carolers. Poor Mrs. Spoelhof was kept busy baking blanket for them, because everyone stopped at the president's home. Of course, PRISM forgot to take the carolers in December. This picture was posed in March. Note the song book.

For a town of its size, Grand Rapids offered some excellent musical fare and drew many students to its frequent concerts. Its symphony orchestra was not outstanding, but enjoyable. The Community Concert series offered such top attractions as the NBC Opera Company and the Aspen Festival Quartet at unusually low student rates. And for those who liked their music light, there were the appearances of Mantovanni and Fred Waring.

After any concert, popular restaurants such as Holly's had long waiting lines. Those who were in a hurry (and a few others) went to places not on Miss Van's list instead.

Grand Rapids had one all-purpose barn which served for both symphony and circus. The Civic Auditorium was almost a campus annex.

HARMONY AND HOLLY'S

SORE THROAT AND SAK'S FIFTH AVENUE

Choir and band tours produced more than music. In late March, two hundred students were poured into six busses. When they got back, tally showed new Calvin friends gained in West Sayville and Wilmar, and for the musicians—dreams of aces and spades, budding romances, and utter exhaustion.

HOMECOMING COMMITTEE: Standing: E. Deters—elections and queen, R. Swierenga—displays, B. Kooistra—publicity, P. Huiner—alumnite. Seated: D. Vander Brug—half-time ceremonies, G. Van Harn—general chairman, N. De Nooyer—motorcade.

When the Homecoming game was scheduled for a Saturday afternoon and set in the same week as the centennial pageant, the committee was worried that the week might prove too busy. They were right. It was too busy—for study, and classes might as well have been dismissed. But that did not stop the crowds. They found some changes in the traditional program. Coronation ceremonies were expanded. Alumnite was moved to nearby Ottawa High, and guided tours of Knollcrest were introduced. Faculty lecturers Wolthuis and De Koster drew alumni audiences. And despite predictions, the Civic was filled for the Homecoming climax—the Calvin-Wheaton battle.

ROYALTY AND REUNIONS

Presiding over the Homecoming festivities was attractive and poised Queen Jan Meeter. Completing a very lovely picture were attendants Charlotte Fonger, Elaine Last, Anita Van Andel, and Iris Buteyn. From the time they posed for photos on Wednesday afternoon through the close of Saturday's game, the girls had little time for themselves.

At the Homecoming kickoff Friday noon, Dr. Strikwerda, Alumni Association president, presented Queen Jan, and she was crowned by basketball's Tom Newhof. Alumnus Rev. Peter Eldersveld, '32, highlighted the evening performance of the musical "How You've Grown!". After the performance, the Alumni Koffee Kletz again filled the Commons. On Saturday, prelude by a special luncheon, the Court led the motorcade to the Civic. During half-time ceremonies there, they presented the display trophy to the Class of '59. And the game? In the season windup, Calvin bowed to traditionally strong Wheaton in one of the hardest fought season contests.

With its "Prelude to Spring," the Junior-Senior Banquet started a round of formals that included almost anyone who was in a party mood. The month of April kept local hotels and restaurants busy and students broke.

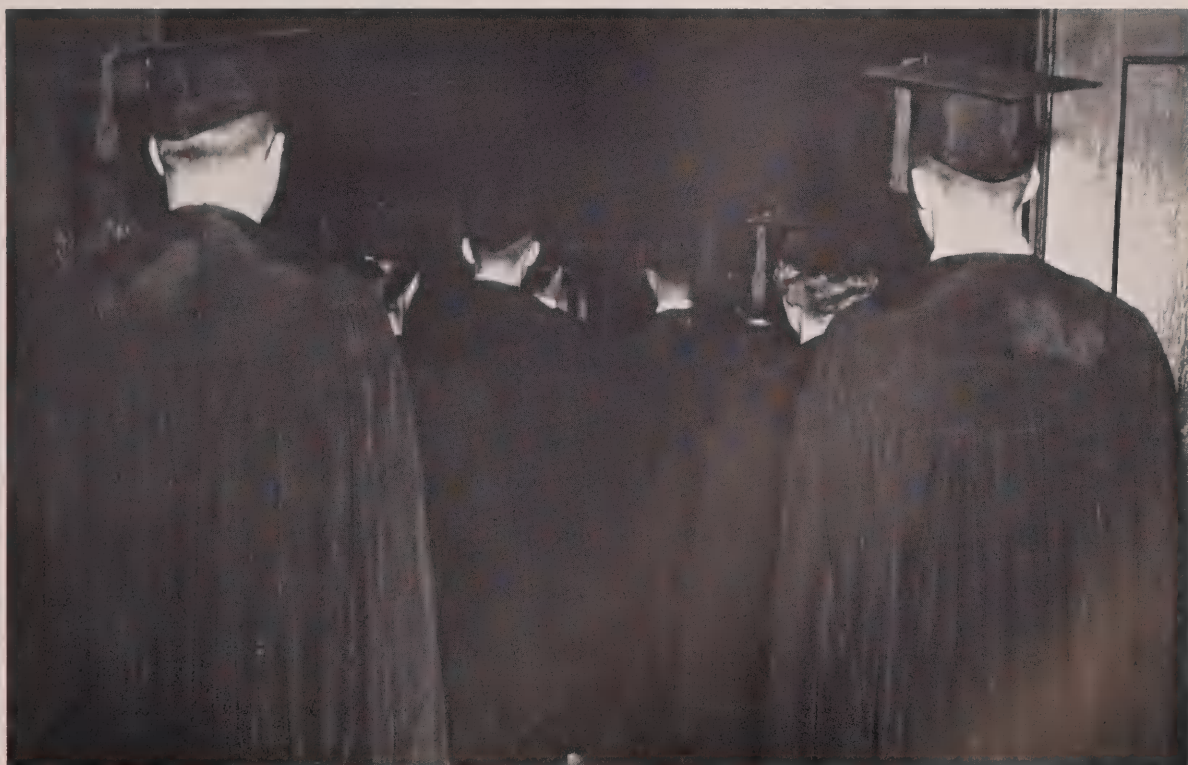

CARNATIONS AND CRINOLINES

TESTS AND TASSELS

The eleventh hour—and this really happens!

A long walk, a soon-forgotten speech, an automatic handshake, an A.B.

THEY WERE ALL JUST CALVIN

The orchestra hesitantly began the martial "Pomp and Circumstance," and with a last-minute tugging at mortarboards, the long hall at the Civic was filled with billowy black robes and bobbing tassels.

At the head of the line, now entering the rear of the auditorium, came the college and seminary faculties led by their Presidents. Familiar faces showed solemn between gold tassels and impressive multi-colored hoods of learning.

Graduates nervously waited to march. Some of them had never seen each other before. There was the boy from Massachusetts who finally had learned to pronounce his "r's." Here, a scrubbed Canadian coed. That tall fellow had been a basketball great. The girl behind him served on the Homecoming Court. They all looked very much alike in academic black. Tonight they were all just Calvin.

"Hey, we're moving."

"Wonder where we'll be next year."

"Who knows? Germany maybe. Are you getting married this summer?"

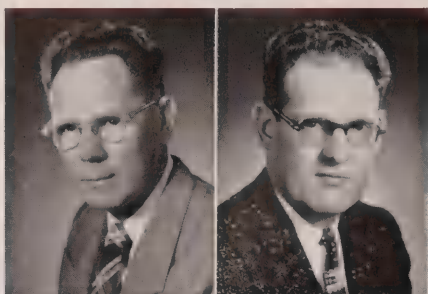

"No, four years of med school is a long grind. I figure I'd better wait a year."

Down the aisle came the potential engineers, teachers, lawyers, financiers, and perhaps a college president.

Parents smiled proudly.

FROM A PAINTING BY F. BOEVE

DR. HENRY ZYLSTRA

Superlative teachers are rare. All of us at Calvin knew that Dr. Zylstra was an unusually gifted teacher. He had the indispensable undergirding of wide and meticulous scholarship, and he illuminated it with an imaginative reach that rose above the mediated detail to encounter the student with vision. He knew not only what the authors said but what they meant, not only in their own special cultural context, but for us now. His massive learning was shared in sparkling phrases, with sunny humor, and a rare dramatic gift. At the core of his personality was the dynamic of a robust Christian commitment. To that commitment he devoted the full measure of his talents.

His benefactors have many voices. The student whose life he decisively influenced—even into choosing a career, the fledgling writers whose efforts he painstakingly aided, the baffled boy whose problem he untangled, the despondent colleague whom he cheered, the varied committees whom he served, the readers whose vision he widened—we are all benefited.

We trust, all of us who loved him, through the mercy of our Lord, to see him again in that land where the shining ones commonly walk.

—Calvin "Chimes," Dec. 7, 1956

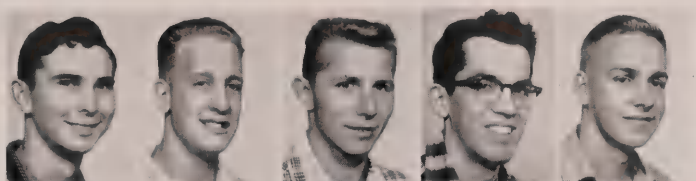

When seven hundred new faces appeared on campus, they were bound to be noticed despite the immediate donning of crisp Calvin jackets by the freshmen in a futile effort to be inconspicuous. The Class of '60 elected Marty Oordt president, Cal Dykman, vice-pres., Carol Vanden Bosch, sec., and Bunny Meyering treas.; held their first class party in February at Garfield Park.

It took a lot of car washing to raise the money, but the Class of '59 was bent on a Calvin innovation—a sophomore formal banquet complete to an operetta, "Down in the Valley." Their officers: Norm Meyer, pres.; Dale Topp, vice-pres.; Helen Ham, sec.

The somewhat cocky Class of '57 looked a bit askance at the efforts of the Juniors to excel the success of last year's Junior-Senior Banquet or the post-game socials. It was the job of Chuck Porte, pres., Don Koopman, vice-pres., and Ruth Schut, sec., to regiment the Class of '58 into proving to the seniors that the school will go on after graduation. They did.

ENGINEERING

Ben Vanderwerff and Neil Quist anticipate careers in engineering. Most engineering students complete three years at Calvin, then receive advanced courses at universities.

Four years pack a lot of memories. For the Class of '57: a hectic freshman election, a much-won Homecoming trophy, "Swanee Daze," annual class parties, and a spirit of comradery seldom seen on a college campus. Norm De Nooyer, pres.; Earl Schipper, vice-pres.; Mary Kool, sec.

THE BUILDING ON THE CORNER

College students referred to it as "the building on the corner." Few of them knew what went on in the Seminary, and fewer cared. Their contact was limited to what they saw each morning when with coat-tails flying, the brethren made their unceremonious entrance to the coffee shop.

But for the seminarians, Plato had been replaced by exegesis, and conversation centered around babies instead of basketball. The bulletin board dictated sermon assignments. Next summer might find them in Steamboat Rock.

It was an eventful year for the Seminary. A new young President assumed his duties. The centennial thank-offering brought promise of a memorial seminary building in the near future.

And as the church entered another century, no one would feel the responsibility, the satisfaction, or the disappointments of her leadership more than these future ministers.

EPILOGUE

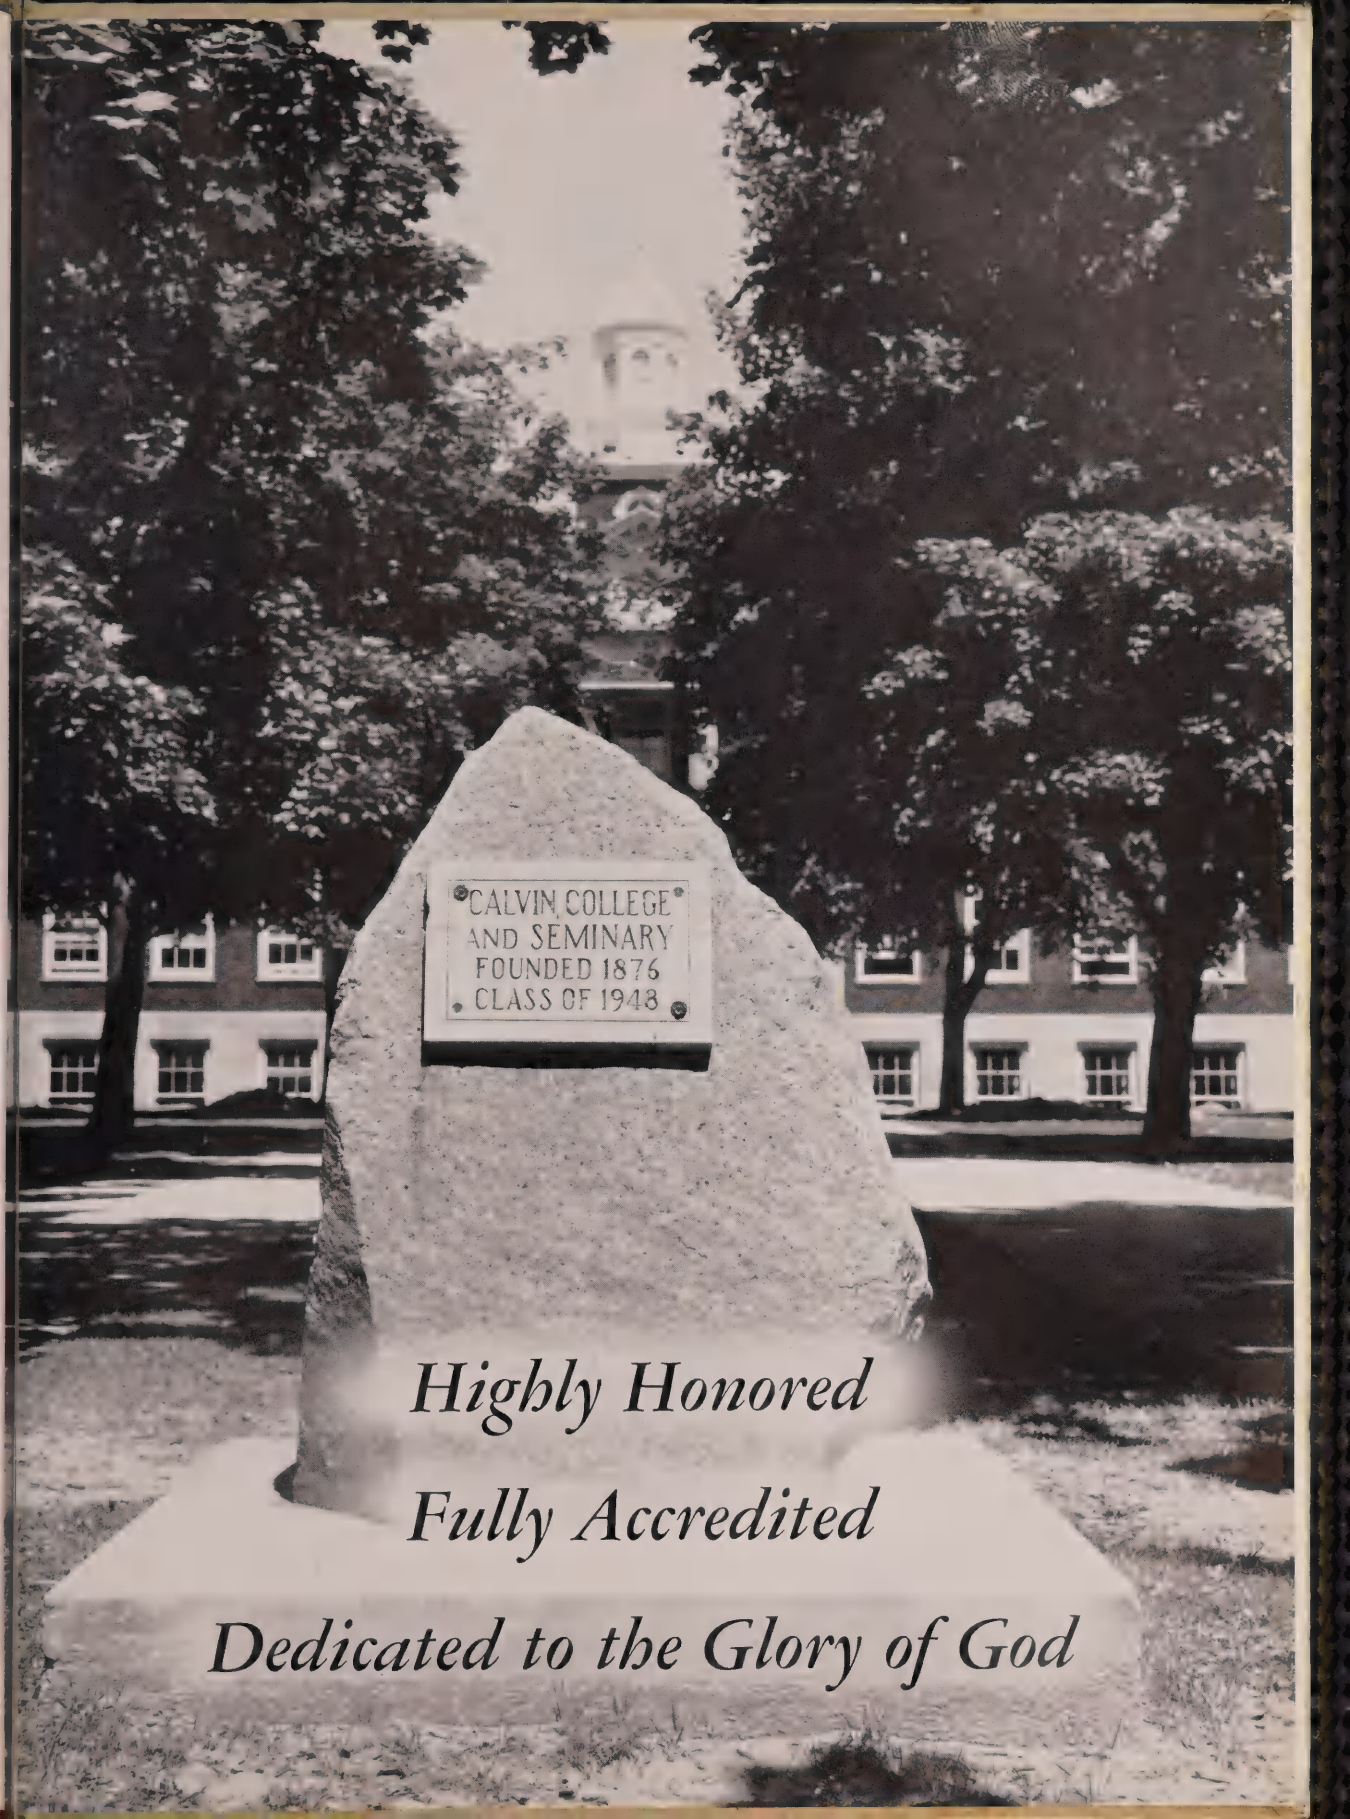

The chimes in the white dome have rung the last school hours of 1956-57. The seventeen hundred sparks have returned to Paterson or Denver leaving the library a catacomb, the commons depressingly quiet. The centennial office in the seminary building is being dismantled. During June, the Synod of 1957 will enter these halls to decide the future of Calvin College. But the students will not witness the decisions. They have left to take their places in the church that mothered them, their names added to the growing roster of Calvin alumni that now numbers well over five thousand. What the next century holds for them, for their church, or for their alma mater they may never know. But from the little college in Western Michigan has come the potential which with the continued guidance of God could guarantee a Christian Reformed bi-centennial in 2057.

AFTER THE BATTLE

There would have been no 1957 PRISM if it had not been for the assistance and advice of Mr. Noer and Mr. Brier of Indianapolis Engraving Co., Mr. Rogers of Rogers Printing Co., Bultman Studios for equipment, Miss Janssen, faculty sponsor, and Mr. Youngsma, morale booster. To these people and to a prize staff—our sincere appreciation.

Pete and Jerry.

RUSTER DAIRY CO.

Janice enjoys the pleasing and stimulating environment of a modern business office. She is shown here taking dictation from Mr. Alex Mackay.

Janice Staal is another outstanding example of the successful Calvin-Davenport business woman. After one and one-half years at Calvin College, Janice enrolled in Secretarial Course at Davenport Institute. Upon graduation one year later, she was employed by Michigan Bakeries, Incorporated, as secretary to Mr. Alex Mackay, Vice-President-in-Charge of Sales; Mr. Richard Pratt, Credit Manager; Mr. Lewis Wall, Vice-President-in-Charge of Purchasing; Mr. Charles Pecor, Office Manager; and Mr. C. E. Kincaid, President.

Janice's marriage, in the early summer, to Mr. Peter W. Rottschäfer will not interrupt her business career. Since Pete will have to serve his time in the Armed Forces, Janice will find that Davenport Institute's nationwide employment service will serve her well in finding a top-flight office position in the event Pete is stationed in a location where Janice can join him.

Janice's experience is further evidence of the rewarding employment opportunities open to college-trained women with specialized business training.

MIDAS' TOUCH...

Today success is often measured by material wealth.

Self Help Mutual takes this opportunity to extend its congratulations to you! We believe, however, that success in life consists of more than "Midas' Touch"... REAL SUCCESS is measured by what you put into your chosen profession, vocation or advanced studies... not what you get out of it. It is our hope that you will have the satisfaction of attaining REAL SUCCESS!
